A MORE EFFICIENT WAY TO WORK

SAP, a mission-critical enterprise resource planning (ERP) business application, enables organizations to optimize business performance by connecting people, information and businesses across networks. However, managing the SAP environment and supporting the underlying technology presents many challenges.

With a steady stream of required technology updates to maintain technical support, gaps in skills that can delay support and threaten enterprise operations, and unpredictable support costs that make budgeting difficult – many organizations are engaging alternative resources to support their SAP application environment.

How do you choose the right hosting provider? Do they understand SAP? Do they have the resources, skills and experience to run and maintain your environment efficiently? Do they have robust and resilient data centers? Do they have flexible cost-effective models that can meet your needs? How effective are their security practices? How well do they support your compliance requirements?
